in the McNamara murder trial began yesterday to guard against the doctrine of justification in the destruction of the Los Angeles Times building with the accompanying loss of 21 lives. Assistant District Attorney G. Ray Horton also resumed looking into possible Socialistic tendencies to the minds of prospective jurors.

"Would you be willing to convict in a case involving the death penalty on circumstantial evidence?" he asked Frank Frakes, a farmer.

his opinions about what caused it. He was succeeded by R. H. Fitzgerald, a young investigator for the defense who testified that Talesman George W. Johnson said to him in August "there was no question but that The Times was blown up by labor unions."

Lynn, Mass., Nov. 1.- A decision on one of the two points submitted to him Monday for settlement by the shoe manufacturers and the Knights of Labor cutters in this city, was rendered yesterday by Mayor William P. Counery.

noon, the mayor ruled that the cutters shall, pending the final arbitration of the difficulty, return to work on a 45-hour a week basis. The mayor has not yet reached a decision on the make-up of the arbitration tribunal, but promises to do so within 48 hours.

He also stipulates that if necessity should arise, the cutters shall work overtime, the question of such necessity to be settled by an agreement between the manufacturers and the executive board of the cutters' assembly,

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 1.-President l'aft's second swing around the circle s originally planned ended in the noisidemonstration he has experienced in ill his 12,000 miles travel.

Pittsburg yesterday celebrated the entennial of steam navigation on western rivers, President Taft reviewing a big fleet of steamboats and motorboats, all of which tied down their whistles for five minutes on his approach.

Nearly 150,000 persons were on the whatves and cheered the president enhusiastically.

Reviewing the boats from the steamboat Virginia, President Taft said it was such a fleet as he had never seen before. He spoke briefly, praising Roose-Father and Mother of Dead Woman velt for his successful efforts in behalf of the Panama canal.

Methods of Avoiding Slate Waste. More than usual attention has lately been given to the use of the waste material from slate quarries, which amounts to about 80 per cent, of the slate quarried. This waste has until recently always been regarded as a use less and expensive but unavoidable product of the quarry. Within the last few years, however, it has been suggested that the quarrymen, instead of trying to find use for so large a quantity of waste material, might devise some means to avoid waste through better methods of quarrying. At the present time it is the general practice of slate quarrymen to blast out heavy irregular masses of rock instead of employing such machinery as might obtain blocks of stone better fitted for use for roofing or in mills. Applying Modern Machinery.

During the last two years some quar ries have been opened for the special purpose of getting out stone with modern machinery and working up the slate in such a way as to obtain from it all possible material of value. The slate quarries in this country are all worked from the surface, being stripped on top and thus worked down to the slate from above. Some experiments are, however, being made in working the slate from below with modern machinery and us by the removal of the good slate. A Pennsylvania firm has been mak ing from waste slate a roofing for flat
